LEARNING to LEARN WHAT ??? WHY ?? HOW??

What?

“Learning to learn” is a youth exchange set in the village of Dinan, a charming place in the heart of Brittany.

The event takes place during “faut que ça bouge” which is an event with has the aim to highlight young initiatives in the territory of Dinan.

It will focus mostly on learning at least 5 concrete things per day.

The daily schedule of the project will be divided into three parts.

Part of the morning time will be dedicated to collective moment (key competences of youthpass, non-formal methods, intercultural dialogue...)

Part of the afternoon time will be dedicated of the learning process (in individual or in collective way)

Part of the end of afternoon will be dedicated to self-reflection

Also, bring some national drinks and snacks for the intercultural evening :)

Why?

Aim of the project is to permit to 20 young people to learn at least 5 concrete things per day with different methods of learning. To discover that it exists different process of learning.

How?

The course will use non-formal educational methods, including presentations, group work, sharing and games. You will have different methods and tools proposed to learn 50 things in total. You will be learner but also teacher during this process. The activities will be individual or collective.

Most of the activities will take place in Dinan.

Accommodation:

All the participants will be hosted in the camping in Taden, We rent 4 mobile homes (4 or 5 places per mobile home).

For further information, photos of the residence facilities can be found here : <http://www.camping-lahallerais.com/fr>

You will be sharing room(s) and sometimes double bed with another person(s) of the same sex in mixed national groups. Bed linen will be provided but you need to bring your towels.

Wireless internet will be not available in the mobile home but in the reception. Also the wifi will be available in the CRI (Centre de Ressources à l'internationale), five minutes far from the place where you will eat for lunch and work.

Please note that no additional accommodation will be provided for your stay in the residential house outside the training dates. Those of you willing to arrive few days earlier or depart few days later should inform us.

SOMETHING ABOUT BRITTANY...

Brittany is a cultural region in the north-west of France. Covering the western part of Armorica. It is bordered by the English Channel to the north, the Celtic Sea and the Atlantic Ocean to the west, and the Bay of Biscay to the south. The historical province of Brittany is now split among five French departments: Finistère in the west, Côtes-d'Armor in the north, Ille-et-Vilaine in the north east and Morbihan in the south on the Bay of Biscay. Since reorganisation in 1956, the modern administrative region of Brittany comprises only four of the five Breton departments, or 80% of historical Brittany. The remaining area of old Brittany, the Loire-Atlantique department around Nantes, now forms part of the Pays de la Loire region. Brittany is the traditional homeland of the Breton people and is recognised by the Celtic League as one of the six Celtic nations retaining a distinct cultural identity that reflects its history.

Dinan:

You will be located in Dinan, a charming medieval town on the hilltop, enclosed by many fine old buildings, some of which date from the 13th century. The town retains a large section of the city walls, and it is possible to traverse part of them.

Major historical attractions include the Jacobins Theatre dating from 1224, the Gothic St Malo's Church, the Romanesque St Saviour's Basilica, Duchess Anne's Tower and the Château de Dinan.

A major highlight in the calendar is Dinan's "Fête des Remparts". The town is transformed with decoration and many locals dress up in medieval garb for this two-day festival. The festival takes place over the third weekend in July every two years.
